1. Significant Events. The advent of April saw the end of Operation Prairie I, at 2400H 19 April 1967, and the commencement of Prairie IV, at 0001 April 1967.

A Battalion (-) search and destroy mission was held in the western sector of the TAOR. A change of enemy tactics is apparent; with the initiation of a vehicular ambush. The ambush was well constructed; triggered by a anti-vehicular mine; and accompanied by hand explosives, mortars and small arms weapons.

It is also noted an increase of firing at helicopters with S/A's and one incident by a 50 caliber machine gun.

2. New Developments. The most pertinent happenings were the returning of V.C. Returnees (Montagnards), at three different dates. Currently 63 on 1 April, 49 on 5 April and 14 on 7 April 1967. All these were questioned and it should be noted, that, they reported maltreatment by their V.C. capturers and were significantly suffering from malnutrition.

3. Problem Areas. The AN/TPS-21 continues to be a grave problem due to the fact that, elements of it have not been in use since Dec. 66.

The AN/PRS-1 continues to be lacking within the battalion.

4. Weather. The weather for the month of April has been clear, sunny days, with at times scattered showers and concentrated humidity. The mean high low for the month respectively were 80 degrees and 72 degrees, with visibility at seven miles and precipitation at 7.94 inches. The general out-look has been slightly cloudy and widely scattered showers.

5. Intelligence Summaries. A decisive increase in enemy activities is prevalent, indicated by 4 mines and 2 bow and arrow type booby-traps incidents, which have been discovered. For further significant events see paragraph 1.

6. Daily Intelligence Summaries. See Appendix I.

7. Special Intelligence Summaries. None.

8. Prisoner Report. Three groups of V.C. Returnees (Montagnards). First group of 3 on 1 April 1967. Second group of 49 on 5 April 1967. Third group of 40 on April 1967. A total of 152.

9. Enemy Casualties. NVA/VC KIA (conf) - 0. NVA/VC KIA (prob) - 9. Returnees (Montagnards) - 152.

6. Intelligence. The following enemy intelligence was available prior to commencing the mission. During the latter part of January 1967 and early February 1967, an enemy base camp was located in the vicinity of XD 965452. Enemy units consisting of NVA and VC in strengths up to twenty-five personnel were observed and contact made with along a trail in the vicinity of this base camp. The enemy mission appeared to be infiltration or resupply along this trail, utilizing the base camp as a way station. In mid February 1967 a large, well constructed and equipped base camp complex was located in the vicinity of XD 905497. Also minor sightings and contacts with small NVA/VC units in the surrounding area. It was speculated that the enemy mission in this vicinity was also infiltration, possibly utilizing the base camp complex as a rest and reorganization station. Intelligence of a more timely nature was a sighting and contact, made with an enemy force estimated at 80 NVA immediately north of Hill 492, XD 924489, during the morning of 10 April 1967. The mission of this enemy unit is unknown, however, it was noted that although greatly superior in strength to the friendly unit, the enemy did not attack aggressively, but limited their deployment to light probes. Overall, it was anticipated that the enemy situation throughout the area of operation consisted of a limited number of guide/liaison personnel with the possibility of larger units infiltrating through.

During the conduct of the mission, enemy contact consisted of one small arms engagement with 2 NVA/VC at XD 949469 resulting in 2 enemy KIA (prob), and the location of 4 enemy emplaced mines 2 booby traps. The mines were of Chicom grenade type, activated by trip wire. The booby traps were bow and arrow types with seven foot long spears activated by trip wires, both located at XD 972449. The enemy emplacements located during the mission were 15 camouflaged bunkers and 1 hut at XD 927469 and a platoon size base camp at XD 916496. Also discovered were 2 graves estimated to be two months old at XD 927469 and 4 graves with markers dated October 1966 at XD 931483.

The terrain within the area of operation is mountainous jungle with vegetation ranging from waist high elephant grass to a double canopy, in excess of seventy feet. Due to the nature of the terrain and denseness of the foliage cover and concealment is excellent. The same aspects of terrain and vegetation that enhance cover and concealment, however, tend to limit observation. Although there are no obstacles in the area of operation, the ruggedness of the terrain and thickness of vegetation hamper rapid foot movement unless existing trails are utilized. Critical terrain features are Hill 492 at XD 925498, Dong Ca Lu at XD 933476, Hill 512 at XD 954451, and the finger overlooking the Khe Ba Ngao at XD 980445. Avenues of approach to the area of operation are the Tien Hien Valley at XD 915543 and the Gieng Thuan Valley at XD 915525 in the north. The plateau through which the Khe Ngai and Khe One flow at XD 895472 in the west, the Rao Quan Valley at XD 925419 in the south-east and east.

The weather experienced during the mission varied from clear and sunny during the early stages, to overcast and rainy in the latter.

Civil Affairs activities and psychological warfare operations were not conducted during the mission. The only civilian hamlet located in the vicinity of the area of operation is the Montagnard hamlet of Tan Ho located south of the Riviere De Quang Tri. There is no recent evidence of enemy activity in this hamlet. All indications are that the populace of this hamlet are friendly and cooperative.

As Company "K" moved north to their blocking position, Companies "L" and "I" with the Command Group moved in a southerly direction along the trail indicated in the overlay. The trail had been well marked and prepared. There were bomb shelters dug approximately 50 meters apart. Different portions of the trail were made more negotiable by handrails, steps and bridges. Small base camps appeared generally along those portions of the trail nearest the water where there are thick canopy and steep rocky draws affording much natural cover and concealment from artillery and air. At 131210H the Company "L" point man was moving down the trail in the vicinity of XD 949469 where there is a stream crossing. As the pointman entered the stream, two NVA on the opposite bank arose from concealed positions and fired killing the pointman. The man behind the point fired as the NVA were fleeing and wounded one. An artillery mission was fired south and east along the trail with excellent target coverage. A search of the immediate area showed heavy blood trails and pools of blood off the trail.
