COMMAND CHRONOLOGY 1-13 May

Air Support and Defensive Chronology

1. Significant Events. Air contributions to the mission of 3d Bn, 3d Mar. during the month of May include; movement of troops, close and direct air support missions, aerial observation and extensive TPQ-10 missions.

5. Intelligence.

During Operation Prairie IV the 3d Battalion, 3d Marines did not operate outside of its TAOR except for the operation at Khe Sanh. (See reference b) With the possible exception of Mutter's Ridge in the vicinity of XD 9761, there was no significant increase of enemy activity within the TAOR, although the I Corps area in general saw an increase in enemy activity. Reconnaissance units continued to report NVA/VC activity just outside the boundaries of this Battalion's TAOR.

Prior to Operation Prairie IV, small units were believed to be operating near the Razorback and Mutter's Ridge; and small VC units were believed to be operating in the southern portion of the TAOR in the vicinity of the Ca Lu outpost at XD 014455, Ba Long Valley and along Route #9. It was assumed that the enemy had established an infiltration route in the vicinity of Hill 492 at XD 923499, Dong Ca Lu at XD 923477 and Dong Chio at XD 926443 and that he was also using the valleys in the vicinity of XD 8761 and XD 8955 for infiltration.

Intelligence gained during the operation indicated: (a) small groups of NVA continued to operate in the Razorback Ridge and Mutter's Ridge areas; (b) known and possible anti-aircraft sites have been established in the rugged terrain north of Mutter's Ridge; (c) convoys and traffic on Route 9 continued to be slow and unhampered; (d) the Da Krong River Valley is being used as an infiltration route by enemy troops coming from the Khe Sanh area; (e) there are an undetermined number of enemy in the area of XD 9751; (f) small units continue to visit civilian villages south of Ca Lu and (g) an estimated NVA company is operating or infiltrating through the valley at XD 8761.

The terrain within the area of the operation varied from open and flat lands in the Bo Long Valley to rolling foothills in the vicinity of the Battalion CP, to rugged hills and mountains along the southern, western, and northern boundaries of the IIOR. The vegetation varied from scrub brush and elephant grass in the flat and rolling terrain, and graduated to double canopy in the high hills and mountains. With the possible exception of some scrub brush and elephant grass, cover and concealment was excellent throughout the area. From prominent terrain features such as the lookpile at XD 9856, observation was good. Avenues of approach were excellent and were provided by the many river valleys in the area. Obstacles were the Song Nam Lo and the Riviere de Quang Tri.

The weather during the operation was cloudy with widely scattered showers interrupted by days which were clear and hot. During the last half of the operation a brisk breeze blew from southwest to northeast. The weather did not adversely affect the operation.

Psychological operations were conducted during the operation in the form of aerial drops and hand placement of psychological warfare leaflets.

Civil affairs activities were conducted during the operation and included "work for food" projects with Montagnards and MedCap patrols into villages. The attitude of the civilian populace was friendly and cooperative.

11. Logistics and Maintenance

a. Supply. During the operation difficulty was experienced in obtaining spare parts from FLSU for maintenance of our weapons. Frequently weapons were downed at FLSU longer than the normal time due to lack of spare parts. Usually it took 3-4 days to repair a weapon. Since this Battalion does not have a designated POL area, the 9th Motor Transport Battalion has been supplying this organization with POL. There were periods, however, when the 9th did not transport Battalion was unable to meet our POL requirements due to other commitments. One other problem encountered in this area was that JWP did not stock several types of ammunition that were needed by this organization.

b. Maintenance. Small field maintenance of individual weapons, gear and equipment was accomplished.

c. Transportation. Movement within the TADR was by foot and helicopter.

d. Communications. The shortage of AN/PRT-25 accessories in the supply system was a continuing problem during the operation. A relay station consisting of two men and two radios was placed on the Rockpile in late April. This relay station has proved to be very useful in maintaining communications with the Battalion rear at Long He.

e. Medical Evacuation. The company corpsmen administered first aid to injured personnel as required. The Battalion Surgeon and 3 corpsmen accompanied the Command Group on operations and rendered first aid as necessary. All wounded personnel requiring immediate evacuation were MedEvaced by helicopter. A collection and clearing company in Kue Sanh treated part of the casualties and the remainder were treated in rear echelon areas. There were 43 casualties for the Periodic II operation; 4 were KIA's, 23 MIA's and 14 NE's.

12. Special Equipment and Techniques. See Reference (b).

13. Reconnaissance Analysis

a. This Battalion is presently conducting intensive reconnaissance type training for squad-size units consisting of selected personnel. The training period consists of ten days instruction and covers the subjects listed in enclosure (1). Special emphasis has been placed on the requirement that all personnel undergoing reconnaissance type training be thoroughly familiar with and be proficient in calling in and adjusting supporting arms. For the last part

The patrolling activities of this Battalion had been limited to an area out to approximately 3000 meters from permanent battalion positions. By utilizing limited reconnaissance teams, this battalion could be capable of conducting reconnaissance activities in the gap between the present 3500 meter limit and the area in which Reconnaissance Battalion patrols operate. It is considered that this Battalion's reconnaissance effort will not in any way interfere with the activities or reconnaissance activities of the Reconnaissance Battalion.

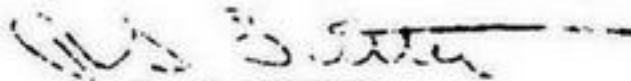

2. Additional comments under Commander's Analysis are indicated in reference (a).

3. Recommendations

a. That this Battalion continue to train and utilize long range patrol activities to close the gap between normal patrolling activities and the reconnaissance activities of the Reconnaissance Battalion.

b. Additional recommendations are indicated in reference (b).
