NARRATIVE SUMMARY

The Battalion continued to carry out its assigned mission in accordance with 9th Marines Operation Plan 1-68, for the A-3 position. During the period of 1-7 January the Battalion devoted a major effort to completing the required fortification of 39 Dye-Marker living bunkers and four radar bunkers. A fire support plan and attendant defensive scheme of maneuver for both a two and three company defense was completed, and standard fighting positions, obstacles, overhead wire, and ammunition bunkers were completed to support both plans. Third Battalion, Fourth Marines occupied Hill 28 (YD170730) to the northwest of A-3 and screened in its FO north of the trace to the DMZ, until 12 January. With the major Dye-Marker construction effort largely completed, greater emphasis shifted to long range and local security operations. It was therefore determined that the presence of 3/4 on Hill #28 was no longer required to ensure the security of the northern approach to A-3. On 12 January 3/4 moved to a new location near Con Dinh and chopped "K" 3/4 to the OPCON of this Battalion. Kilo 3/4 along with Kilo 3/3 occupied defensive positions on Hill #28 while Lima and India Companies defended the A-3 position. On 14 January Kilo 3/4 was chopped OPCON to the 12th Marines to relieve Mike 3/3 which was returned to the A-3 position on the same date. Upon the return of Mike Company from the OPCON of the 12th Marines Lima Company was moved forward to defend the eastern sector of Hill #28. In addition to preparation and improvement of defensive positions on A-3 and Hill #28, the battalion committed over two reinforced companies per day to security and sweep operations. Tactical operations routinely included a requirement to employ one company (rein) to provide security for the 11th Engineer Battalion personnel constructing MRR #566 between Route #1 and A-3. This mission was accomplished by sweeping all probable ambush sites and north-south avenues of approach in the eastern portions of the FO, as well as providing close in security for the construction personnel. Additionally not less than one platoon (rein) swept the western sector of the FO and a minimum of five squad or fireteam sentinal posts were employed for daylight local security. A minimum of four squad size night ambushes and three fireteam listening posts were also employed. Extensive use of night observation devices, starlight scopes and PPS reders, substantially contributed to the security and fire direction efforts of the Battalion. This month also saw a marked increase in the exploitation of all supporting fires, in particular direct and general support artillery and ground controlled air support. Of particular note was the continued professionalism and expertise of the Aerial Observers assigned to cover the Battalions FO.

On 13 separate occasions a total of 54 friendly artillery rounds were received in or near the inner perimeter of A-3 and Hill #28. These rounds were fired from C-1, A-2 and C-2 and on certain of these occasions great difficulty was experienced in achieving the coordination required to "check fires". Corrective action appears to have been initiated and a definite improvement in this regard has been made during the latter part of the month.

Enemy artillery and mortar fires have been received on eight occasions for an overall total of 143 rounds most of which did not strike the perimeter. Only four casualties were sustained from enemy incoming artillery and mortars. Ground contact has been generally limited to meeting engagements of limited scope and both friendly and enemy sniper activity. On several occasions the enemy attempted night probes ranging from 4-15 personnel in strength. On each occasion enemy personnel were engaged by local security at close range. On 30 January Mike Company engaged a column of 25 NVN conducting a night movement from north to south approximately 1,000 meters from the 1-3 position. The NVN were engaged at close range from an ambush position and heavy casualties were inflicted upon the NVN. A large quantity of enemy equipment and documents were recovered.

There have been several changes in command and staff assignments in the past month, the most significant of which was the assumption of command by LtCol J. W. MURPHY from LtCol R.C. WEDDING, on 21 January 1968.

There have been no significant problem areas experienced during the past month. Casualties have been light, morale is considered excellent to outstanding and support has been substantial.

PART III

SEQUENTIAL LISTINGS OF SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

1. Combat Missions Assigned:

a. Basic Mission. To conduct missions in assigned area of operations in accordance with 3d MarDiv Operation Order 59-57. (Kentucky)

b. To conduct anti-infiltration operations in AO with special emphasis on interdicting north-south infiltration routes, assume responsibility for enlarged AO, to include outpost of Hill #28 with not less than two rifle companies at night; defend A-3 and provide protection for construction effort on Route 566. Reference: 9th Marines Operation Plan 2-68; 9th. Marines Frag Order Number 12 (Opn Kentucky).

c. On 24 January 1968, Lima and Mike Companies and Command Group (-) mission was to seize Battalion Objective #1 (YD 197716) and #2 (YD 201705) and sweep assigned axis of advance, to destroy all bunkers and tunnels encountered, to apprehend all civilians making an overt attempt to avoid friendly forces. Reference: Battalion Frag Order 1-68

d. On 29 January 1968, Lima and India Companies and Command Group Alpha's mission was to secure Battalion Objectives #1 thru #4 and establish OP's on commanding terrain; destroy enemy bunkers and positions encountered; determine possible enemy positions, infiltration routes, OP's and ambush sites; conduct terrain analysis of areas in the vicinity of Objectives #1 and #2 in connection with planning of night platoon ambush operations. Reference: Battalion Frag Order 2-68.

2. Significant Operations Conducted.

a. On 24 January, Lima and Mike Companies conducted a sweep of the entire western AO south of MSR 566. Lima Company moved west of the A-3 position with the Command Group and subsequently changed direction to the southeast in a diversionary effort. Mike Company moved from A-3 directly in an easterly direction south of the MSR to Hill #44 and established a company base camp. This phase of the operation was conducted under the cover of darkness with little difficulty. At such time as Mike Company was in position, Lima Company began a detailed search of the southern most section of the AO with negative results. The companies returned to the perimeter at A-3 prior to last light without contact.

b. On 28 January, Lima Company departed its defensive positions on Hill #28 to sweep the northern boundary of the AO and subsequently established a blocking position/patrol base at YD 190745. India Company moved with the Command Group 1,000 meters south of Lima Company and subsequently swept north to the intersection of the railroad tracks and the DMZ at YD 193752. Initial movement was executed without contact. While Lima Company remained in position India Company swept south to YD 187710, at which time both companies returned to their defensive positions prior to last light. Negative contact was gained.

3. Casualties Inflicted on the Enemy.

8. Logistics.

a. Supply.

(1) General. During this reporting period the battalion has been building up the A-3 position. A daily resupply by helicopter is the only means of transportation to A-3. This resupply carries all classes of supply plus personnel and equipment.

The battalion has built up its stocks on position with a 10 day supply of Class I and V for reserve purposes. This stock is set aside and wired up and can only be used in case of emergency.

The weather has been the only problem of resupplying the battalion and has had a large effect on being able to resupply the A-3 position.

(2) Class I - A daily resupply keeps the regular supply of Class I maintained at a three to five day level. Water buffalos are hauled out with the resupply by helicopter.

(3) Class II - There still remains a critical shortage on:

Gas Masks & Spare Filters	Blankets
Upper Body Armor	Binoculars
Bayonets	Jungle Kits
Canteen Cups	.45 Cal & M-16 Magazines
Packets Ammo .45 & M-16	Knife, Hunting

(4) Class III - No problems encountered in keeping an adequate supply of POL on hand.

(5) Class IV - Due to Operation Dye-Marker, no problems encountered in obtaining Class IV items.

(6) Class V - The battalion supply of Class V is maintained at a BA + 10 DOA.

b. Motor Transport.

(1) The present status is considered adequate on M274A2's (Mules) for current operations but our present status on M422A1 is below normal operational level. This battalion is without a jeep ambulance at this time. It has been deadlined at 3d echelon maintenance for over 60 days.

d. Maintenance Problems.

(1) A shortage still exists on carburetors for the M422A1, spark plugs for both M422A1 and M27412. Front and rear pull cables for mules and cable leads.

i. Morale is considered to be excellent to outstanding.

j. Postal services during the month of January has been excellent.

12. Intelligence.

Enemy activity was at a low key in the 3d Battalion, 3d Marines AO during the reporting period. There was evidence of numerous small unit movements in the AO.

Well used trails, small unit sightings and the interrogation of a Viet Cong POW indicated that local Viet Cong and NVA units are receiving resupply and reinforcements from North Vietnam through the use of harbor sites and base camps in the southern DMZ area.

A Viet Cong POW was captured on 18 Jan 68 during a sweep by Mike Company. Interrogation of the prisoner determined that he was a local force Viet Cong leader who had been trained in North Vietnam. The POW's mission was to spread propaganda and harass U.S. and ARVN troops with sniper fire. His unit, consisting of 10 to 15 men, conducted its operations from a base camp located at An Ya, and used this area as an entry point south to the 9th Marines AO. The prisoner stated that the 27th Independent Battalion received resupply across the Ben Hai River every 5-15 days. 20 men were used to carry supplies.

The infiltration routes used are along the railroad tracks parallel to Route #1 and the north-south trail at YD 190745. The time of movement has been in the late afternoon or early evenings, prior to 2300H.

Two contacts were made with enemy elements on or near the north-south trail. The first resulted in 2 NVA KIA and 1 POW. The most significant contact was made by a Mike Company ambush on 30 January 68. The ambush site was checked at first light and revealed one NVA KIA (corp), blood trails, 2 individual weapons, many packs and large quantities of rice, meat and clean uniforms. Also found were 600 rounds of 7.62 ammunition, ponchos, hammocks, surgical equipment, money, picnics, grenades and a pouch of unopened mail. The quality and amount of equipment found indicates that the enemy element was a resupply unit.

The discipline of the enemy unit under fire and his actions at the time of the ambush indicate that the enemy were new reinforcements carrying resupply items rather than regular transients who would be familiar with the area.

The 2d Battalion, 803d NVA Regiment had been identified as operating north of the A-3 position, in the southern DMZ. To date no evidence of a platoon size or larger unit has been found in the 3d Battalion, 3d Marines area of operations.

13. Communications.

a. General. The communications platoon operated both radio and wire during the month of January in the forward and rear positions. Battalion, Regimental and Admin nets were maintained. A switchboard was maintained by Lima Company during the period of time that this company was operating outside the battalion perimeter. The wire section completed the task of wiring and overheading a new wire cable throughout the entire perimeter. During the month of January the construction was completed on a new communications bunker in our rear area. This bunker serves to house message center, switchboard, radio sets, as well as all classified documents and equipment.

b. Training. The majority of the platoon's training was of an on-the-job basis. However, during this time, classes were conducted in order to cross-train both radio and T/CP sections. There still remains a constant effort to cross-train wire and radio personnel. New radio personnel are training with the rifle companies.

c. Communication Equipment Status. The following is a list of combat essential equipment that is not operationally ready:

- | | |
|-------------------|--------------------|
| (1) 1 - AN/MRC-83 | (8) 1 - TCC-14 |
| (2) 5 - AN/PRC-25 | (9) 1 - AN/PRC-41 |
| (3) 2 - TA-1 | (10) 1 - AN/PRC-47 |
| (4) 3 - TA-312 | (11) 2 - TFS-21 |
| (5) 3 - AN/CRA-39 | (12) 2 - RC-222 |
| (6) 1 - KY-8 | (13) 3 - TP-3240 |
| (7) 1 - GGC-3 | |

d. Problem Areas. Hip and tape antennas remain in short supply. We now have 10 AN/PRC-25's still to be replaced. This remains to be a handicap for the proper functioning of this platoon. It is noted that the overall life of our BA-386's has taken a sharp decrease during the month. This is especially true of both the "Burgess" and the "Crown" batteries. Relative to this, is the fact that the "Crown" batteries are not packed in a plastic waterproof bag, and therefore are somewhat exposed to moisture before their initial use.

14. Weather. The general weather for the month of January was mild with sporadic rain, cold and sunny, dry days. The rain became sparse toward the end of the month allowing the ground to dry considerably and become hard. However, fog has remained a problem in the early morning hours, remaining thick and wet until mid-morning. The temperature averaged a high of 73.8 degrees and a low of 64.1 degrees. Total rainfall was only 1.36 inches for the month. The wind was generally from the northwest and averaged 6.4 knots. The average humidity was 84.2 per cent and mean visibility was 5.2 miles.

15. Fire Support.

a. General. The majority of missions fired were of suspected enemy position nature. Very few live missions were fired and those that were, generally took place at night and surveillance was impossible. Artillery was credited with three confirmed kills from either H&H's or prep fires.

b. Problem Areas. The major problem area came from friendly fire impacting in and around the perimeter. The problem in some cases was found at the firing battery but in most cases no answer was found.

The other problem areas included a lack of feed back. The battalion never knew how many of our hits were fired and when they were cancelled or why they were cancelled. For this reason the count on hits is inaccurate.

c. Units Providing Direct and General Support.

- (1) Btry "K", 4th Bn, 12th Marines
- (2) Btry "M", 4th Bn, 12th Marines
- (3) Btry "F", 2d Bn, 12th Marines

17. Activities/Deactivations/Redesignations. None

18. Training Report. During the month of January the battalion had limited company training due to operational commitments, construction of Dye-Marker bunkers and construction of the A-3 position. When training was conducted the companies covered basic military subjects. Other subjects stressed were patrolling, map and compass reading, radio procedure and forward observer procedures.

There were two special schools held during the month. A radar school was held for H&S Company and selected personnel within the individual companies. Also an aircraft recognition school was held for the S-2 Scouts, personnel on the OP's, and selected personnel in the individual companies.
